

State p fake titles on Lamu refinery land

BY CHRIS MAHANDAR (KNA)

The Government launched investigations into alleged fraudulent titles issued for land earmarked for the Lamu refinery. Government Spokesperson Charles Owino said the land was acquired by the Kenya Ports Authority (KPA) and that families who were living on the land were compensated before the property was conserved.

"If there are Kenyans who genuinely would not have been compensated, the government cannot even think twice not to compensate such people," he said.

Owino defended the project, arguing it should not be overshadowed by the land dispute, citing the huge economic benefits from the investment.

He said the Sh2.2 trillion investment which broke ground would significantly increase Foreign Direct Investment (FDI).

The spokesperson said Kenya's current FDI stands at about Sh3.1 billion and that the refinery is expected to generate more than Sh4 billion annually, pushing the country's FDI to over Sh7 billion.

Owino further said that the refinery would generate about 1,000 megawatts of electricity, which he described as significant given the country's current installed capacity.

He said part of the power would be used to run the refinery, while the surplus could be supplied to the national grid.

He added that the refinery would produce by-products that could serve as raw materials for local industries, including tyre and plastics manufacturing.

Owino said Kenya previously had a local tyre manufacturing plant but now solely relies on imports, arguing the refinery could help revive such industries.
